DEMO HOUSING BILL IS VETOED TODAY

Tear Gas Used To Halt Riot; 38 Hostages Unhurt

By ELMER LAMMI

United Press International

MONROE, Wash. (UPI) — A small army of officers, in one bold move with tear gas cartridges, today captured four convicts who had threatened death for 38 hostages if their escape demands were not met.

No one was injured in the move.

Dr. Garret Heyns, state institutions director, helping direct strategy from his office at the state capitol in Olympia, said the officers "conceded" the four convicts into defeat.

"The guards armed themselves with tear gas after waiting until the hostages had bedded down," Heyns said. "Then with just the four men up and around, prison officials called four to the window and told them that I was coming to talk to them.

"As soon as they came to the window, the guard let them have it with tear gas. There was no one hurt. The four prisoners were shook up by the tear gas but will recover shortly. These things are serious and they will happen anywhere. It all depends on how well you handle them."

The move against the convicts, holding their hostages in the re-formatory's visitors room, came moments before 4 a.m. p.m. (8 a.m. e.d.t.). Within five minutes, it was all over.

Screams and shouts could be heard after the tear gas shell-clouded. One woman was carried out, apparently a victim of the gas fumes.

One of the hostages, Mary Turner, 34, holding her five-month old baby, Elaine, said, "I wasn't bad at all. The baby knew some thing was going on all the time.

She wouldn't go to sleep. When we came out, I said to my husband, 'Stay with me.' He told me,

'We can't go anywhere.'"

Mrs. Turner said none of the four convicts ever "acted real fierce."

Hostages Appear Relieved

United Press International Staff

Dick Anderson, who watched the hostages being led to fresh air, said "there wasn't a whimper from the children. Their eyes were red with tears, streaming down their faces, but they looked stair-to-the lower floor of the administration building where newsmen were sent at the time of the assault.

"It was all successful. Everything is okay," he announced.

Heyns said it didn't "bother my conscience a bit" because the prison guards used trickery to end the uprising.

"The end justifies the means in this case," Heyns said. "These four convicts, captured today, were reported bleeding slightly from the chest, a possible wound from a bit of exploding tear gas shell. His wound was described as superficial.

Good Catches Of Fish Reported

FRANKFORT (UPI) — Some good catches of fish are reported this week, especially at Dale Hollow, according to the state Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Catches of white bass are reported by fishing with minnows at night off the deep banks at Dale Hollow. They are being taken about 30 feet deep from 11 a.m. to 4 a.m. Many limits of one and two pounders are being caught.

At Lake Cumberland, after a slow weekend, the catch of crappie, was speeded up and many are being caught in the mouths of the slough, at depths of around 25 feet, with the best time being at night. Many white bass also are being caught, mostly with minnows at night.

Best catches at Herrington Lake are bluegill and catfish, with a few whites being caught in scattered junks and some crappie being taken at night by fishing with minnows around the stick-ups.

Some good size crappie are being caught at Dewey Lake and some large catfish are being taken in the murky waters at the upper end of the lake.

The take of black bass at Kentucky Lake continues fair with some being taken on surface lures in the very early morning and late afternoon. Trouters are catching some sauger in the lake, and a few striped bass are being picked up in the scattered junks.

Corvette Lanes Will Open Here In August

Announcement was made today by Corvette Lanes, Inc. that the Corvette Lanes will open about August 6 in the same building with the Collegiate Restaurant.

Dexter Mead, executive vice-president of the company, will be the proprietor and manager of the bowling center. He said that AMF bowling equipment will be used in the center and that it will be the most modern bowling center within 300 miles of Murray.

Twelve lanes will be in operation. The "AMF" "magic triangle" and "magic circle" will be features of the bowling center. The "magic triangle" shows the bowler if he makes a strike or just what pins are left standing. Bowling balls are returned underground and enter the "magic circle" or "lazy susan" to be reused.

A general color scheme of blue and gray will be used, both in the lanes and in the bowler and special seats. All seats are of plexiglass and may be rearrang-

Telephone Talk

by
F. H. RIDDLE
Your Telephone Manager

WHAT'S YOUR PLEASURE? Salt air? Trout streams?
Skyline and bright lights? Whatever your vacation choice, you'll have more fun if you phone ahead for reservations.
Long Distance makes it easy, too, to check in with the office while you're away or give the folks at home advance notice of that "whopper" you're bringing back. Calling Long Distance costs so little. Costs even less when you call station-to-station, with extra bargains after 6 P.M. and on Sundays.

RECIPE FOR RELAXING:

One get-together
One patio
One extension phone
At your right elbow Sit not a bit—just Cool in the shade
When the phone rings—reach—
You've got it made!

ANY COLOR PHONES in your home? If so, you're right in style. The Bell System has just won a special award for adding the beauty of color to telephones. It's from the National Society of Interior Designers—the first award of this kind ever made by the Society.

HERE'S A BEAUTY TREATMENT THAT SAVES MONEY! Sound impossible? Well, here's how it works.
"Spring" type telephone cords—the kind that can't twist and catch on things—eventually lose their neat, tight curls.
Then they're ready for a "permanent wave." (They get it when the telephone comes in for repair.) Around one million cords get the full beauty treatment each year—washing, rewinding, and heat setting. $400,000 is saved by this annually, helping to keep down telephone costs.

It Will Be A Young Favorite Against An Old Pro As The NL Sends Don Drysdale Against Veteran Early Wynn In All-Star

By LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI Sports Editor

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The favored National League sends 22-year-old Don Drysdale against the American League's 39-year-old starter, Early Wynn, today in what may be the last All-Star game as the current baseball generation remembers it.

Some of the glamour already has been rubbed off today's classic by the fact the two leagues will, for the first time in history, play a second All-Star game during the same season on Aug. 3 at Los Angeles.

Nevertheless, a capacity crowd of 34,000 is expected to jam Forbes Field today to witness the latest renewal of an annual midsummer event began way back in 1933.

Drysdale, the hard-throwing right-handed ace of the Los Angeles Dodgers who has won nine games and lost six so far this season, was manager Fred Haney's choice to face a preponderantly right-handed hitting American League line-up for the first three innings.

Burdette to Follow
"After that," said Haney, managing in his second All-Star game
"I lean toward Lew Burdette."

And after Burdette, of Haney's own Milwaukee club, it's almost a cinch that little Elroy Face of the Pirates will finish up. Face is the National League's No. 1 relief pitcher with a glittering 12-0 record and Haney undoubtedly wishes to give local fans a chance to see their home-town pride in All-Star competition.

In choosing the crafty Wynn of the White Sox to start, Casey Stengel appeared to veer away from his original intention of opening up with Baltimore knue-kleballer Hoyt Wilhelm, who won his first nine games this season, then lost his next four.

Wilhelm suffered his latest loss Sunday and Stengel wasn't sure the veteran right hander would be rested sufficiently to start.

Stengel, with a record of three victories and five defeats in eight previous All-Star games, did not say who would follow Wynn but did make clear that Ryne-Duren of his own Yankee staff "will be in there," most likely for the last three innings.

Casey to Use Lefties Left-handers Whitey Ford of the Yankees or Billy Pierce of the White Sox appear the best bets to pitch the middle innings for the American Leaguers, who are 13 to 10 underdogs in the game although they have won 15 of the 25 All-Star contests.

The American League has won the last two games by one run.
They won the 1958 game at St.
Louis 6-5, and last year's contest at Baltimore, 4-3.

Most baseball men feel the American League's best chance today lies in home run threats Harmon Killebrew of Washington and Rocky Colavito of Cleveland, both of whom are in the starting lineup.

Big drawback for the American Leaguers, however, is that they have only one left-handed hitter in their starting line-up. That's second baseman Nellie Fox of the White Sox, whose specialty is singles.

The other American League starters are leftfielder Minnie Mi-nos of Cleveland, centerfielder Al Kaline of Detroit, first baseman Bill Skowron of the Yankees, catcher Gus Triunfo of Baltimore, and shortstop Luis Aparicio of Chicago.

The National League has two left-handed hitters in its starting lineup — third baseman Eddie Mathews, who has hit 25 home runs so far for Milwaukee, and left-fielder Wally Moon, batting 299 with Los Angeles.

Johnny Temple of Cincinnati will start at second base, Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco at first base, Ernie Banks of Chicago at shortstop, Willie Mays of San

A romantic suspense novel by MARTHA ALBRAND

A SPY at MONTE CARLO

(c) Copyright, 1958, by The Curtis Publishing Company. All rights reserved. Published by Curtis Publishing Company, Inc., 1515 Broadway, New York 19, N.Y.

What has happened? The adventure that led a young American artist, Mark Travers, to the most challenging and desirable woman he had ever met began when his friend, Philippe Langle, was murdered.

Philippe, a French diplomat working in Algiers, was endeavoring to meet Timgad, an agitator of Algerian revolution. Philippe's dying words were "Find Timgad. Mark Travers, Mark got involved in his search for Timgad until Corinne Javal, one of the women in his life, gave him a clue. Timgad had been seen in Monte Carlo. Mark few there and immediately received a note that warned he would die if he followed his own business. Yet only two persons had advance knowledge of his trip to Monte Carlo—Inspector Perrier of the Surete and Corinne Javal.

While pondering that and awaiting a second rendezvous with Corinne at 10 a.m., he encountered a beautiful ballerina, Fleur, who was the wife of his date with Corinne and his danger. He got Fleur to promise to have lunch with him without learning her address. Later, when he had to explain having break their luncheon date, Mark went seeking aid at the home of her brother Guy. He did not meet Fleur.

"Don't hurry," Mark said to keep his rendezvous with Corinne, he found Corinne dead in her car. Determined to proceed cautiously, to avoid drawing attention and suspicion to himself, Mark met Inspector Perrier. The inspector advised Mark to leave Monte Carlo and forget about Timgad.

CHAPTER 9
MARK ARRIVED at the Mulot at twelve o'clock sharp.

With a shock, he remembered that Fleur had not been sure she could come. And the possibility that she had been unable to leave the house, that he might wait for her in vain, made him frown. After all, this was the twentieth century, in which one did not keep a young girl locked up. A slight touch on his shoulder made him jump, but it was only the waiter. "Would the gentleman mind coming inside?"

Stepping out of the heat into the dark, cool room, he could barely see because of the difference in light. "We fixed up a table in the back." A hand took him gently by the arm and led him through the restaurant into what seemed to Mark even deeper shadow, a small back room. When he could see clearly again, he found himself opposite a man he had never seen before, a small, thin man who carried himself with dignity and now introduced himself.

"Marcel Bransky," the former ballet master, the man who had taught Fleur everything she knew about dancing, the man who lived with the Constants.

"Mademoiselle will be here in a moment. Do sit down."

With utmost politeness, as if he were the host, he brushed a chair around for Mark, then seated himself at the table, which Mark saw with annoyance was set for three.

"Would you like a drink, Monsieur Travers?" Bransky answered the unformed question on Mark's lips. "You couldn't see us.

We were waiting for you inside. Only when we were sure you and came did Mademoiselle go upstairs to speak to the dressmaker."

All at once Mark could grasp the incongruity of the situation. Here he was, eager to meet Fleur and enjoy the day with her, and she had brought a chaplain. "I thought we might have champagne," he said.

"Of course. If you desire, but Mademoiselle should touch no alcohol."

"Of course not," agreed Mark, then could not help grinning. "Tell me, Monsieur Bransky. Since you are apparently on our side, don't you think all this is . . ."

He couldn't find the right word. Bransky had understood him perfectly. "Crazy, you mean? From our point of view, perhaps. The Constants are a little crazy, all of them."

"Are they?"

"Many old people live in the past because the reality of the present frightens them," said Bransky. "But that is not the case with the Constants. They want to recreate the splendor of the past in Fleur, and all their efforts are bent toward that end."

Mark again saw the four women on the flowered terrace. "Her brother did not strike me as a man who doesn't face reality."

Bransky sighed. "He is like them, only in a different way. But his heart, too, is centered around Mademoiselle. The champagne had come and Bransky twisted it mechanically in the cooler. "You see, when she was ten years old, she was in a car accident which killed their parents. The doctors said she would never walk again but Guy swore that she would not only walk, but dance. Through life. He meant it allegorically, of course. Until it became apparent that she could really dance. But that came later."

"During those years when she could hardly move, it was he, alone, who imbued her with the energy not to give up, who spent endless hours with her, day after day, year after year. No wonder he looks upon her as his creation. Now he takes for granted that the seed he has sown will produce the flower he expected, and forgets that she is a human being, too."

Mark Travers remembered the narrow, determined shape of Guy Constant's mouth, and that he had thought it bitter and mean.

"I couldn't help his coming along," said Fleur's voice, close to him. Mark had not noticed her come into the room. "When I told them I had an appointment with the dressmaker, Grand-maman insisted that Bransky should come with me. What could I do but tell him the truth?"

Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle Meets Thursday

The Kentucky Colonel was the meeting place for the Jessie Houston Service Club of the Supreme Forest Woodman Circle Thursday night, July 1, 7:30. Mrs. Lois Waterfield, national committee woman and treasurer of the local grove presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. Mackie Hubbs. Mrs. Sallie Lawrence opened the meeting with prayer.

The Grove voted to give $10.00 to "Care". Mrs. Nannie McCoy took a list of the sick and bereaved to be remembered with cards. Plans were made for the regular Grove meeting at the Club House June 9 when a dinner will be held at 6:30 p.m. preceded by the regular meeting.

Miss Janet Henry, granddaughter of Mrs. Bee Wall Melugin, was a guest. Mesdames Gendora Hamlett and Katie Martin Overcast were hostesses and served a delectable and coffee.

Mesdames Hazel Tutt and Helois Roberts extended an invitation to the members of the service club for the July meeting.

Miss Margaret Katherine Wright And Claude Mitt Miller Are Wed In Mayfield

MR. AND MRS. CLAUDE MITT MILLER

At an afternoon ceremony, at the First Methodist Church in Mayfield, on June 14 at four o'clock, Miss Margaret Katherine Wright and Claude Mitt Miller pledged their marriage vows. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wright of Mayfield and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude L. Miller of Murray.

The Rev. J. C. Gilbert, church pastor, read the double ring ceremony before a large assembly of relatives and friends.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, appeared in a full-length portrait gown of clipped Chantilly lace, over white satin and net. The fitted bodice featured a scoop neckline, outlined in a design of flowerlets made of pearls and sequins, the long tapering sleeves fastened with tiny satin buttons ended in points over the hands. The bouffant skirt, poised over a bridal nook, terminated in a chapel train. Her only jewelry was a matched pearl necklace, gift of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet fashioned of Better Times roses and baby breath centered with a detachable white orchid and showered with white satin streamers tied in lovers' knots. Her fingertip veil of imported English illusion was attached to a demi cap of Chantilly lace, trimmed with tiny pearls.

Miss Frances Wright, only sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She was gown in silk organza over blush pink taffeta designed with a scoop neckline and tiny sleeves. Matching satin shoes and a small headpiece of flowers with an extending circular maline veil complemented her costume. Her cascade bouquet was of pink California asters accented by pink satin streamers. Mrs. Vernon Davis of Paducah, Mrs. Frank Miller of Louisville and Miss Martha Griffin, cousin of the bride from Memphis, were bridesmaids. Their dresses were of similar style to that of the bride, and they wore bandeaux of pink organza with tiny bouquets and circular maline veils. They carried identical colonial bouquets of pink asters.

Miss Sandra Jones of Dyersburg and Cary Miller, brother of the groom from Murray, lighted the candles. William Marvin Griffin, cousin of the bride, was ring-bearer.

Frank Miller of Louisville, served as best man. Ushers were another brother, David Miller; Ben Hendrick, cousin of the bridegroom and Robert Griffin, Memphis, cousin of the bride.

The organist, Charles Wyatt, played "Clair de Lune" (Debussy); Liebestraume (Liszt); "I Love Thee" (Grieg); "On Wings of Song" (Mendelssohn) and the traditional wedding marches.

Charles Baugh, soloist sang "Be-cause" (Handel); O Promise Me" (DeKoven); and "The Lord's Prayer" (Mozart) as the couple knelt for the benediction.

The church was decorated with a large white arch covered with huckleberry and garlanded with wedding bells. Two seven-branch ed candelabra held white candles and a nine-branched tree candle-labrum holding white candles was centered directly behind the arch. White gladioli were arranged in white stands. At either end of the chancel rail were bouquets of lilies, pink carnations and baby breath. Palms were massed at intervals in the chancel. The family pews were marked with white satin bows centered with valley lilies.

For her daughters wedding Mrs. Wright chose a mint green embroidered cotton satin sheath featuring a matching chiffon drape at the back neckline. Her white hat and satin purse were sequin trimmed and her corsage was fashioned of pale green xymidium orchids.

Mrs. Miller, mother of the bridegroom, was wearing an imported aqua batiste dress trimmed with matching lace. White accessories and a white xymidium orchid corsage completed her outfit. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Wright entertained with a reception in the church parlor.

The bride's table, covered with a white linen and silk damask cloth, held a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride couple and garlanded with pink carnations and fern. White carnations and baby breath formed the floral arrangement in the center of the table and on each side silver-candelabra held burning pink candle tapers.

Mrs. Susan Furness, Misses Joan Mansfield, Joan Carter and Ann Malone presided at the cut glass punch bowl. Miss Norma Reed kept the guest register. Background music was played by Miss Meredith Farley of Murray.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Miller left for an announced wedding trip. For traveling Mrs. Miller was attired in a lamp suit of avocado green with which the wincey bowtie and white accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet. Upon their return they will reside at 913 West Seventh Street in Columbia, Tenn. for the summer.

Mrs. Miller graduated from Mayfield High School and attended Draughba Business College of Paducah. Mr. Miller graduated from Murray High School and is attending Institute of Technology, Atlanta, Georgia.

Out-of-town guests included Dr. and Mrs. Hugh McElrath, Mr. and Mrs. Porter Chilcutt, Mr. and Mrs. Howard McNeely, Miss Carolyn McNeely, Mr. and Mrs. Haly Carter, Rev. and Mrs. T. A. Thacker, Miss Sherrie Thacker, Mr. and Mrs. O'Neil Hawes, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Weatherford, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Tolley, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wilkerson, Johnny Pate, Miss Gayle Thurmond, Mr. Allen Rose, Mrs. G. After the rehearsal on Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Miller and Mrs. Claude Miller were hosts at dinner, at the latter's home in Murray, to members of the bridal party.

The serving table, overlaid with a pink linen cloth, held as the central appointment an arrangement of lilies and Queen Ann's lace flanked by pink tapers in white holders. A miniature bride and two bridesmaids circled with greenery and flowers decorated the buffet. Individual guest tables held miniature brides.

Mrs. Orvis Hendrick and Mrs. Cross Spann Jr. assisted the hostess in serving the twenty-eight guests.

The bride-elect chose for the occasion a white embroidered cotton-sheath dress.
